Mr. Todd on the Stand.

Mr. Todd took the stand in his own defense, and brought out the fact that Q Street had never been fully graded, but had been opened by the street car company for a right of way for cars to Oakwood Cemetery, the excavations being only to the side of the car tracks, so that what he had in charge was not only sidewalk excavations, but for a part of the roadway as well, making an excavation over a width of twenty feet of sloping embankmient. Mr. Todd said his first estimate was entirely offinand, based on memory, and on the fact that the city was then paying about 25 cents per yard for excavating. Besides the natural excavation, he said, there was a great excavation, water and gas trenches.

He had written to the various departments that they must bear the cost of that removal, but Mr. Richards had told him "not to bother," but to go right shead with the work, that he was anxious to have it pushed. Mr. Todd asserted that he had necaured it in cross sections.

"I say you did." responded Mr. Richards with heat.

"I told Mr. Bolling I had taken measurements," resumed Mr. Todd, and he road his measurements from his notebook, but asserted that that was before any work had been done, and that he had not made special measurements for the two cash allowances made to the contractor, as the usual custom was to measure up such jobs as a whole when the work was completed. The contractor went back and cut a small amount more and measurements show that at the contract rate he had now earned $352.50, which was a sclose as it was possible to get to the ward appropriation. "We had orders to stop the work without exceeding that fund," said Mr. Todd.

Mensured by Eye.

Mr. Dally, of 1103 Oakwood Avenue, was called by Mr. Richards, and testified that measuring merely by eye, he thought the ground pretty level all over, but admitted that the cum and the ment ran out toward the car track. Contractor Kellam, who did the work, told of taking measurements with Mr.

Contractor Keilam, who did the work,
told of taking measurements with Mr.
Todd and Mr. Bass before the work began. He testified that except for bad weather, he had never stopped work until notified, and that conflicting notices as to the amount of work had cost him about $200 of idle time for his teams.

Mr. Kellam thought that at the time of the payments he had done approximatcly enough to earn what was paid.
He said he had often had allowances

European Critics.

Washington, D. C., December S.—
European critics who labor under the impression that the American navy is manned in large part by alleans picked up in the open ports of the world may quickly discover their error by reference to the annual report of Rear-Admiral Reginald F. Nicholson, chief of the Bureau of Navigation, just made public. The admiral shows that of the 30,743 enlisted men other than porty officers in the naval service, 31,51 are native born, 3.46 are naturalized and .41 have declared their intention of becoming citizens. This leaves actually only a fraction of 1 per cent, of alleas resident in the United States and allens non-resident in the naval service, after making allowance for them cold or storm.

SHARE HONORS OF AIR

Barrier and Moisant Furnish Sensations of Day's Flights.

Memphis, Tenn., December S.—Rene Barrier and John B. Moisant shared honors in affairs of the air to-day.
Their flying furnished the spectacular tinge to the afternoon aviation program. In altitude Barrier outdistanced Moisant, mounting 4,200, but for total time in the air, Moisant had the advantage by fifteen minutes and ten seconds. Moisant went to the 400-foot level. Barrier was aloft thirty-four minutes and thirty-six seconds. Roland
G. Garros, Rene Simon and John J.
Frisbic also made flights, but of shorter duration and nearer to the ground.
